'Huge corporations will decide what services will be provided and where.

'But the BMA council meeting last Thursday passed a resolution completely opposing the Health Bill and deciding to organise a campaign against it.

'This is a significant change of policy from the main doctors' union, which previously backed parts of the bill.

'The hierarchy did not want to change policy, but the pressure from the membership, the sharpening of the crisis in the NHS, and a struggle inside the union to defend the NHS, gave rise to this change.

'To defend the NHS we must keep what we have. We must mobilise to defend every District General Hospital, GP surgery and community service and resist these £20 billion cuts.

'Chase Farm Hospital in Enfield is at the centre of this fight.

'A heroic struggle has taken place there over the past five years, involving the whole community, from residents, the local council, campaign groups, and above all, the North East London Council of Action, to keep the hospital open.

'Health Secretary Lansley and his privateer friends have named Chase Farm Hospital as a test case.

'There is only one way to keep all services at the hospital running and that is through physical occupation.'

Joshua Ogunleye Young Socialist National Secretary said: 'Young people are experiencing first hand the huge effects of the world slump and the massive attacks on their education, their jobs and their lives.

'They are angry at the constant attacks and are fighting back all over the world.

'Youth in Egypt are fighting daily against the military regime which has proved more vicious than Mubarak and have reoccupied Tahrir Square until this regime is brought down.

'More and more are descending into the Square and will not go away in spite of being brutally attacked with tear gas, waterannon and more - 60 have been killed so far and thousands injured, but they will not give in.

'Egyptian youth have given heart to the D-1-a nationwide movement of youth last August, from Tottenham to Liverpool, rise up and take to the streets against this repressive capitalist system.

'This system cannot offer anything progressive for young people.

'The crisis is evoking revolution, we are on a revolutionary upsurge.

'The state is arming itself to the teeth to take on young people.

'They have abandoned stop-and-search and replaced it with stop-and-shoot.

'Young people are uniting with older workers, we are joining with the strike on Wednesday.

'We are fighting for a future and building a leadership to win.

'They are scared of us and so they should be. They have every reason to fear that which they can not control.

'We are organising to bring down this government.'

Richard Sheridan, Chairman of the Dale Farm Residents Association, said: 'I come from an Irish ethnic minority and I was born in Britain, I'm not proud to say.

'I have negotiated with Basildon Council for seven years to find a peaceful solution to the situation at Dale Farm.

'I have liaised with all of them, but all to no avail and now 92 families have been deprived of a home and their children have been deprived of an education.

'Basildon council has a duty to provide 62 sites, but they are resisting it.

'The police led the eviction at Dale Farm and it was a brutal eviction. Now we're all homeless.

'This government has to be changed because the people have not been given a fair crack of the whip.

'It is very wrong what they have done to us. My little boy isn't able to go to school because he has no permanent address.'

A statement was read out from Gate Gourmet sacked worker Parmjit Bains.

She said: 'Right from the beginning our union officials knew that Gate Gourmet were going to bring in casuals on August 10 2005 to do our jobs and they never said a thing.

'We went to that day and leaders got us workers were

'Gate Gourmet bought by the ruthless privatisation company, and we showed them the force in order and conditions.
